The Oriental Jews. Before the Crimean War the Jews were alraid to venture into Syria, and suffered from great disadvantages under Moslem rule; but since British protection has been extended to them, they have begun to increase so rapidly as to threaten in time to become masters of Palestine. They have almost closed the gates of Jerusalem to the native peasantry by establishing outposts on the main roads, where they buy at enormous discount the produce of the country, which they retail to the citizens at a profit of a 160 per cent. They have instituted a monetary currency of their own, in the form of dirty fragments of paper, with Hebrew inscriptions, promising to pay the sums of from one to four pennics in Turkish coin. These diminitive bank notes they have forced the peasantry to accept, and they will rarely redeem them Before the Crimean War the Jews were notes they have forced the peasantry to accept, and they will rarely redeem them except at a discount. The Oriental Jew is not a lovable character. To those who know the refinement and education which exists among European Jews, or who have been acquainted with the true Jewish aristocracy which is to be found among the old families of Spain and Morocco, it is hard to believe that the Aslikenazin can be the same race with the among the old families of Spain and Morocco, it is hard to believe that the Aslikenazin can be the same race with the Seplardin. The distinction of character is broad as that of physical appearance and costume. The tall, blackbearded Spanish Jew, with his aquiline features, his large brown eyes, his flowing robes, and the black turban which Hakem imposed on the race nine centuries ago, is the very opposite of the dwarfish Pharisee from Poland or Germany, with his greasy "love-locks," his dirty garbadine, white stockings, and furry cap—his face wizened and greedy, his gait cringing and subservient, his religious ideas confined to the senseless rejetitions of Talmudic ordinances, and his soul filled only with the desire of money. Those who know the Ashkenazin best, have but one opinion of their ignorance, fanaticism, selfishness and immorality; and the tales which circulate among men quite free from any anti-Jewish prejudice, concerning the filthiness of the domestic habit of the Oriental Jew, will not bear repetition or even alusion. It is with such specimens of the ancient people that the four holy cities of Palestine are becoming rapidly filled, while the richer and nobler Jews of Western Europe appear to take, as yet, little interest in the home of their of Western Europe appear to take, as yet, little interest in the home of their forefathers.—Blackwood's Magazine.

The Blue Sky.

Protessor Brucke has constructed an artificial blue sky by dropping a spirituous solution of rosin into water until the liquid becomes turbid and milky. When inguid becomes turbid and milky. When a blackboard is placed behind the glass containing this turbid solution, and the light is allowed to fall upon the liquid obliquely from above, it assumes the aspect of a clear blue sky. Professor Helmholtz very unpoetically, and almost irreverently, speaks of a blue sky as simply an eye with turbid humors. Professor Tyndall has followed up this interesting branch of investigation by showing that an artificial blue sky can also be produced by throwing a strong beam of electric light upon certain kinds or gas contained in long glass tubes. The effect he conceives to be in some measure dependent upon decomposition The effect he conceives to be in some measure dependent upon decomposition of the gas through the agency of the light. One portion of the gas is suddenly precipitated in the form of a delicate cloud, capable of catching and turning back the blue vibrations. In some medifications of the experiments the attenuated vapor makes its first appearance in an exquisitely delicate form. The light reflected from these artificially-constructed blue clouds is always polarized where it is thrown off at an angle of ized where it is thrown off at an angle of 90° from the course by which it has fallen upon the reflecting particles. The most perfect polarization always occurs in the discretization that its discretization is the discretization of the discretization of the discretization and the discretization always occurs in the discretization that its discretization of the discretizat in the direction that is perpendicular to the path of the illuminating beam. The effect gradually grows weaker, and ultienect gradienty grows weaker, and inte-mately fades away, as this perpendicu-larity is departed from. The polariza-tion of the sky is most distinctly devel-oped in one particular track of the vault, and fades gradually away as the neigh-boring regions are brought successfully

One of the Results of Estheticisn.

A young man of Red Bluff, Cal., dressed himself as Æsthete, and on a wager invited Miss Emma Yoller to accompany him to an entertainment. The young lady did not know that her escort was dressed in this ridiculous fashion until she reached the place of amuse-ment. She was mortified and indignant at such treatment, and when she learned that he had requested her company only to win a bet, she became morbid and excited, and seemed to dwell so heavily upon what she considered a disgrace, that her mind became disorganized, and she refused sustenance, and suffered the most intense mental agony and died .-Tchama Tacsin.

THE WORKSHOP.

For tempering small pieces of steel petroleum is recommended. The method is the same as by other processes. The pieces retain their polish and are not tarnished. Care must be taken not to approach the petroleum to the fire. After the pieces have been treated they can be covered with soap, being first slightly heated.

It is no easy matter to ping up a diamond drill hole from which there is a strong flow of water, frequently under great pressure. When a hole is to be plugged there are forced into it small bags of beans and flaxseed. The plug, made of dry pine, from ten to fifteen feet in length, is driven in after these bags and forces them forward in the drill hole; also, a hole is sometimes bored into the end of the plug, which hole is filled with flaxseed. The flaxseed and beans are caused to swell to such an extent by the hot water that the hole is as compactly filled as though closed with molten lead.

Bother owners should place their boil-

BoileRowners should place their boil Boilenowners should place their boilers under the care of competent men, and should not grudge the time necessary for frequent and thorough cleaning out. Boilers should not be blown out and emptied while steam pressure is in them and the surrounding brickwork hot. This is commonly done, but is an injurious practice, and the cause of much of the hard scale in boilers. It they they were allowed to shand till quite cold, much of the deposit could be washed out, but when the boiler is emptied while all is still hot, the much becomes baked into a hard crust not easily removed.

Few realize what an enormous amount of power is stored up in coal, and how little we really utilize it. Prof. Rogers has put it neatly thus: The dynamic value of one pound of good seam coal is equivalent to the work of a man a day, and three tons are equivalent to twenly years' hard work of 1001 days to the year. The usual estimate of a four-foot seam is that it will yield one ton of good coal for every square yard, or about 5,000 tons for each square ere. Each square mile will then contain 3,209,000 tons, which, in their total capacity for the production of power, are equal to the labor of over 1,000,000 able-badied men for twenty years. Few realize what an enormous amount the production of power, are typically the labor of over 1,000,000 able bodied men for twenty years.

If belts are allowed to become covered with grease, dirt, and resin, or to grow dry and hard, they can not work air-tight on the pulleys. Very often no more than twenty-live per cent, of the available power is obtained because of these neglects. Many persons think they obtain more driving power by placing a tightener against the belt; but this gain is only the equivalent of the extra surface with which the belt is brought in contact by the tightener, and in the case of a horizontal belt this will be nearly lost by friction, though an an upright belt the tightener may be useful. There is economy in working with shock belts, keeping them clean and flexible. Hardened belts are best softened by a wash o lukewarm sola water and a thorough scraping and oiling. scraping and oiling.

Keep Those Discharge Papers.

No soldier should allow any person No soldier should allow any person, however specious his reasoning or smooth his tongue, to obtain a copy of his discharge papers. It can be for no proper purpose that any person wants copies of such papers, unless such person be the authorized agent of the ex-soldier and be engaged in securing for him a tract of land under the homestead act; and, even then, the ex-soldier can act for himself. This case can have but one of two meanings: It must be the intention of parties buying up such copies of soldiers' discharges at they can obtain, thereby to beate the case and if that he the case and land; if that he the case and the soldiers' claims remain unim-paired, the government is to be defraud-ed. Or else it means that these copies of the discharge are to be used in some way so as to invalidate the claims of the

A Ridotto Club Party. Last evening the spacious residence and beautiful lawn of Hon, and Mrs. Jason Rogers were brilliantly illuminated by means of gas and Chinese lanterns, the occasion for which demonstration was a reception given the Ridotto Chib and friends by the Misses May and Jennie Rogers. Altogether there were about 50 ashionably attired society people present and all were royally entertained by the young ladies named and their hospitable parents. Dancing to the music of the Wilhelmy orchestra was one of the principal enjoyments of the evening. The dancing took place in the new addition to the residence, which is not yet completed. Choice refreshments of ice cream and cake were served in great abundance.

INFORMATION COMES from Lincoln that the brethren and people of that place leave learned that they cannot furnish free cutertainment to the 490 ministers who will be there on Sept. 20th to attend the Illinois Methodist Conference. They can entertain about 200 persons, but no more. Now there is a little flurry among the brothren because of this unexpected announcement. The presiding elders will probably meet next week and confer together about the unfortunate situation of affairs. We know of several Decatur ministers who would much rather pay their own expenses at conference meetings than become a burden to families.

Haute for Burial. The Inquest Investigation.—The Verdict.

Thomas McCabe, the machinist, who was stabled in the left side on the pavement in front of Gilkeson & McClelland's store, last Saturday evening by Hoy Shurrum, died this morning at 4 o'clock. Last evening McCabe was delirious and tried to get out of bed. Mortification was doing its deadly work. The poor man was in great pain, and threw himself about in his agony. A few hours before

THE INCCEST. Coroner Dinneen was notified this morning of the death of McCabe, and this forenoon he summoned the following named gentlemen as the jury to investigate the case: Henry Mitchell, foreman; J. W. I have no doubt but that wound caused the death of Me Calle. He showed evidence of having

I first heard McCabe call Shurrum a dirty name, and then make a rim at him. Somehody called out, Look out! he (Shurum) has a knife. McCabe then stopped within 3 or 4 feet of Sharrum, and turned and walked back a short distance. He seemed to take a new fit, and turned around and started for Shurram again, and when he go! within good striking distance, with his arm raised apparently to strike, Shurrum threw up his hand in front of his face and he (Shurrum) made a lunge at McCabe, and I suppose he struck him in the stomach. Both men struck. I could not see who struck the first blow. They kind of closed up together and were scullling. After Shurrum was knocked down Me-Cabe got on top of him, and while in that position.
